

Diaz Reus Brings On Former Sequor Law Atty In Fla.

By Madison Arnold

Law360 (September 15, 2025, 3:57 PM EDT) -- Diaz Reus LLP has expanded in Miami with an international lawyer from Sequor Law whose practice focuses on white collar cases involving multiple international jurisdictions.

The firm announced the addition of Martha Araujo Hager last week. Araujo Hager, who joined as of counsel and is licensed to practice in Florida, New York and Brazil, advises clients in parallel U.S. and Brazilian proceedings.

"I am proud to join a leading international law firm with a reputation for excellence in providing the best solutions to clients worldwide. The firm has an incredible team of attorneys and staff with expertise in various areas of the law," Araujo Hager said in a statement.

Martha Araujo Hager

She added "I will be contributing to the white collar, sanctions and international law practice of the firm, building on my previous experience as a former Brazilian prosecutor," handling cases of fraud, corruption and money laundering in global organizations.

Araujo Hager tried more than 30 cases in front of a jury in Brazil as well as multiple civil and criminal cases through the country's traditional bench trial system.

In the United States, Araujo Hager has handled international arbitration and litigation, applications for assistance to foreign and international tribunals and helped litigants under 28 U.S. Code Section 1782, conducting legal research, drafting answers, complaints, motions and memoranda and discovery requests and responses, Diaz Reus said.

Araujo Hager has also dealt with hearings, meditations and arbitrations, including debriefings and negotiations with government officials with the U.S. Department of Justice and its various agencies such as the FBI and Secret Service, the firm said.

"Martha's 30 years of experience in white collar, fraud and corruption, in Brazil as a civil and criminal state prosecutor and in the U.S., and at the United Nations, the World Bank Group and the International Monetary Fund are a great fit for the firm and offer a significant benefit to our clients as we help them navigate thorny cross-border challenges. She is a key part of our growth strategy, as we are currently seeing many sanctions and money laundering cases between Brazil and the USA," Michael Diaz Jr., global managing partner, said in a statement.

Most recently, Araujo Hager was listed as an attorney with Sequor Law, according to her LinkedIn profile. She also spent time with Stumphauzer Kolaya Nadler & Sloman.

Her other titles have included serving as a compliance and internal investigations consultant for the International Monetary Fund and United Nations System as well as a lawyer investigator for the World Bank Group, among others.

Araujo Hager earned both a law degree and a master of laws degree in transnational law from the University of Miami School of Law. She also holds a master of laws degree in comparative and international law from Southern Methodist University School of Law as well as a bachelor of laws degree from Pontifícia Universidade Católica de São Paulo, in Brazil, according to her biography on the firm's website.

Diaz Reus is an international law firm that operates on five continents and maintains 40 offices.

--Editing by Rich Mills.